Herbal Safety Guidelines

Before using an herb you are unfamiliar with, find out its medicinal properties. Research it thoroughly and/or consult with an appropriate health care professional. If you are taking prescription drugs, or have a medical condition, check with an appropriately qualified practitioner before using herbs for health purposes. Use herbs according to product dosage and other instructions. For example, consuming a greater amount than the recommended dosage may be harmful. All herbs have different constitutions, sensitivities, allergic reactions and possible health conditions. The following are some guidelines for safe use of herbs on our websites.

Should I check with my doctor or healthcare provider before using a supplement?

This is a good idea, especially for certain population groups. Dietary supplements may not be risk-free under certain circumstances. If you have a chronic medical condition, such as, diabetes, hypertension or heart disease, be sure to consult your doctor or pharmacist before using dietary supplements. While mineral supplements are widely used and generally considered safe, you may wish to check with your doctor or pharmacist before using them. If you plan to use a dietary supplement in place of drugs or in combination with any drug, tell your health care provider first. Many supplements have biological effects and their safety is not always assured in all users. If you have certain health conditions and take these products, consult your doctor or pharmacist.

Some supplements may interact with prescription and over-the-counter medicines.

Taking a combination of supplements or using these products together with medications (whether prescription or OTC drugs) could have adverse effects. Be alert to advisories about these products, whether taken alone or in combination. For example: Coumadin (a prescription drug) and aspirin (an OTC drug) and vitamin E (a vitamin supplement) can each thin the blood, and taking any of these products together could increase the risk of bleeding. Consult with your physician or other health care provider about any possible adverse interactive effects involving supplements and medications.

Some supplements can have unwanted effects during surgery.

It is important to fully inform your doctor about the vitamins, minerals, herbals or any other supplements you are taking, especially if you are taking these products at least 2-3 weeks ahead of the procedure to avoid potentially dangerous supplement/drug interactions -- such as increased bleeding - that could adversely affect the outcome of your surgery.
