Do your funders know that you stole my picture to make it look like I work here??? This is Chris from the staff graphic. I am not on Tribel's staff. And I left Liker's staff because after I calmly and politely confronted Omar for discriminatory business practices and ethical snafus, he CURSED AT ME ON THE PHONE and hung up in my ear. Also, why does the Board consider this to be a "trivial" complaint?

2/8/24 UPDATE - I see that this graphic was quietly removed:

Do you plan on acknowledging/disclosing the issue to the investors who bought shares during the round of funding where it was up on this page? Do you not think the misrepresentation of your current personnel in the initial round is something that should be accounted for?

2/11/24 UPDATE - Speaking of disclosure== Did you ever get around to telling the investors about the Frisch V. Likeopedia LLC lawsuit that appears to still be open in NY?

2/12/24 UPDATE - According to Mark "Merc" Mercer, "Currently, we do not have any plans to host another raise with this company [see: Tribel] in the future." How does that impact your stated projections of getting to $4,999,991.85 by 4/29/2024?

2/15/24 UPDATE - This will be my final question. But I noticed according to your Nov 3rd 2023 update, you raised "over $2.8 million dollars from more than 7,634 invested supporters."

Clearly, this is not the final tally to the righthand side of this page. In the words of Jay-Z-- "Is it 'Oochie Wally' or is it 'One Mic'?" (That means, "Could you please explain?" I wouldn't want to come off as incoherent with my Ebonics.)
